Manager Commentary

March saw equity markets make further progress, completing a positive first quarter of 2024 for share prices. Gains were consistent for small caps in most of the main markets, although Asian markets slightly lagged. On the whole, data indicated a further easing of price pressures in most countries, but with labour markets remaining tight and strengthening purchasing managers indices, confidence around the likelihood of a June interest-rate cut in the US receded somewhat. We did see the Bank of Japan (BoJ) end its negative interest-rate policy, as had been widely expected. The Company's Net Asset Value (NAV) and share price rose during the month, with both outperforming the Benchmark.

In North America, our portfolio outperformed the local small-cap market return. Shares in Graphic Packaging rose as volumes for the company appear to be stabilising, leading to broker upgrades. We also benefited from good performance from agricultural chemicals company American Vanguard, which reported a rebound in demand at the end of 2023 and guided for a strong uplift in returns in the next year. Wheaton Precious Metals shares bounced as the gold price rose, while shares in Encompass Health rallied as the outlook for fees in the sector improved and the volume of business remained strong. There were not many major fallers on the portfolio, although Graffech International was the exception as demand for the company's electrodes remains weak in the cyclical downturn in the steel market, with the shares not helped by a leading shareholder selling down its holding.

We also outperformed during March in the UK. Here, we were helped by a bid from private equity for wealth and asset management company Mattioli Woods at an attractive premium. Also within Financials, our holding in Just Group rose strongly as the company announced much better-than-expected results for 2023, with the annuities market that it serves in a strong growth phase. Confectionary and food wholesale business Kitwave Group was another strong performer, helped by solid results and news of an accretive acquisition, with other advancers including central London property owner Shaftesbury Capital, promotional products company Pebble Group and foams supplier Zotefoams. Weaker stocks in the month included YouGov, FDM Group and Marshalls. YouGov's interim results indicated the need for a stronger second half to meet full-year expectations, with customer recruitment in the company's data products business slower than hoped for. IT staff business FDM Group warned that it had seen a further deterioration in its market and, with profit recovery expected to lag the eventual pick-up in activity, the shares dropped sharply. Marshalls reported a slow start to 2024 trading, with a weak outlook for the full year 2024 in its landscaping and building products businesses only partly offset by more resilient prospects within the roofing unit.

In Europe, we were a little behind the local small-cap return during the month. Shares in fund management company Azimut responded badly to news of a surprise dividend cut. After a stellar last few months, some of our semiconductor-related holdings suffered from profit-taking, most notably BE Semiconductor Industries. More positively, shares in a recent new holding TOMRA Systems rose after legislation passed in Europe in relation to plastics recycling, which should drive strong growth for the company's technology in the coming years. Ingredients business Symrise was also up as the company announced reassuring profits guidance, and sausage skins business Viscofan rose following solid results. Shares in ticketing business CTS Eventim were also helped by a positive trading update.

Performance in Japan was slightly ahead of the MSCI Japan Small Cap Index during the month. Two names in the real estate sector, Tosei and Nomura Real Estate, performed well, as investors continue to expect negative rates in real terms for the foreseeable future despite the abolishment of the negative interest-rate policy by the BoJ. Two names in the consumer discretionary sector, Pal and Niterra, also contributed to the positive performance, supported by strong quarterly numbers. Weaker performers on the portfolio included electronics company Macnica; IT and industrial products business Daiwabo; and infrastructure construction services company Infroneer. Macnica and Daiwabo announced somewhat uninspiring results, which dragged down their share prices noticeably. Infroneer declined due to the announcement of bond issuance to fund a large acquisition made in 2023. The Eastspring-managed fund holding had a good month, with value stocks remaining in favour, on the whole, in the market.

The Rest of World fund holdings produced a modest gain in aggregate over the month, with The Scottish Smaller Companies and Utilico Emerging Markets investment trusts lagging, with their discounts to NAV's widening further. The Schroder's Global Emerging Markets small cap fund produced a stronger return, helped by exposure to Latin American markets, which were stronger than Asian bourses during the month.

Key risks

Values may fall as well as rise and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Income from investments may fluctuate. Changes in rates of exchange may have an adverse effect on the value, price or income of investments. Where investments are made in emerging markets, or smaller companies, their potential volatility may increase the risk to the value of, and the income from the investment. If markets fall, gearing can magnify the negative impact on performance.
